Miss Nightingale and her nurses scientist? were well received at first by the medical men at Scutari, according to her own letters to her friends at home, But her commanding intellect saw the instant solution of the problems there, and she had the audacity of genius and the courage of high conviction in seeking immediate relief at the expense of minor considerations. Official red tape, which slowly, calmly, and ceremoniously tried to bring order out of chaos, was deadening to her. A dying soldier was of more importance than all the rules and regulations of military and political organizations combined. No one could be more strict in enforcing rules than she, as her autocratic discipline of the nurses proved, but she believed rules changed accordingly. The strongest element in Florence Nightingale's character was a shrinking from the world, which amounted almost to antipathy. It was not an antipathy which ever extended in any way toward the world as individuals 1t was a curious trait which was not understood, because it was kept down by an iron will during the years of her public life. Independence of action, which involved a real touch with a large number of people, many of whom had nothing in common with her, which exposed her personality to view which demanded a life lived in the open, which made her hear the clamor of many tongues and brought the sight of many faces-this meant positive pain and great sacrifice -Rebecca A. Insley, in Harper's Weekly.

The ex-President has just been West on a speech-making tour. The Tribune says he has "instilled new life into the Republican ranks, and probably afforded the party its only chance of carrying the House in November."

The Tribune does well to make the best of it. These Western tours of Republican exhortation seem to be highly speculative undertakings. By

What the Tribune really means when it says that the ex-President has instilled new life into the Republican ranks is that he has made the insurgents think they can thrash the regulars. Chalmers "30" $1500 Chalmers "Forty" $2750 = Licensed unger Seiden Patent.

Automobile Buyers are of Two Kinds:

> Those who want the best car for the least money.

> Those who want the best car regardless of price.

THE Chalmers car is the one car that appeals to both classes of buyers. That accounts for its wonderful popularity. It is easy to show the man who wants a "cheap" car how much more value he can get in the Chalmers by paying a little more. It is easy to prove to the man who wants automobile satisfaction, regardless of price, that Chalmers cars compare favorably at every point with the highest priced cars. Real motor value is what you want, and real motor value means greatest utility for least money. The way to judge a car for value is by what it has done rather than promises of what it will do.

Regardless of price consider what records have been made by the

In speed contests they were given the title of "Champions of the Year," having won more races than any other car, even from cars twice their pAce and horse power. In hill climbing and endurance tests the same record holds good. The Chaimers "30" was selected pathfinder for the 1910 Glidden Tour. The Chalmers "30" was awarded the Glidden Trophy in the 1910 Glidden Tour over the longest and most difficult route ever mapped out for

We could go into details of construction, quality, workmanship, transmission, ignition, etc., but after all, the shortest, strongest and most convincing thing we could say is "See what the Chalmers has done. Where can you get greater value, and what more can you ask of a car at any price?"
